TEACHERS COLLEGE COMMUNITY SCHOOL (TCCS)
ANTICIPATED TEACHING POSITIONS FOR 2018-19

Seeking classroom teachers
The Teachers College Community School (TCCS) invites inquiries and applications for the 2018-19 school year. Openings are anticipated in elementary general and special education, and secondary English, Social Studies and Math. Cluster positions are also anticipated in the arts (music, visual arts or dance) and foreign language. A New York State teaching license is required. Final approval of positions will be subject to budget.

Who We Are
The Teachers College Community School is a unique PreK-8 university-assisted demonstration public school in Harlem, managed by the New York City Department of Education, and formally affiliated with Teachers College. The school opened in 2011 and admits students by lottery. Growing by one grade a year, TCCS currently serves 286 students from PreK-6, and anticipates an enrollment of approximately 330 students when it adds seventh grade in September 2018.

Mission and Special Features
TCCS is a small, dynamic learning environment that focuses on nurturing children’s academic, social, emotional, and physical well-being. TCCS prides itself on having a very diverse student body and actively engaged parents. The school’s theory of action is rooted in student choice, voice and ownership of their learning. The school staff is highly collaborative and committed to development of a robust learning community. Teachers College provides intellectual, human and fiscal resources to enrich curriculum and student learning, and support teacher professional development.
