Recommended Videos for After the Session (especially for white attendees)

- Watch last weekend’s Saturday Night Live opening skit, followed by this 1969 interview by James Baldwin and this even briefer video from a different interview. Consider the insights these provide collectively on the intractability and ubiquity of systemic racism, the implications of positionality, and the implications for these dynamics in a research or graduate education context. These videos will take about 12 minutes to watch.
- If you have time, consider also watching Maya Angelou’s conversation with Dave Chapelle.
