Entry # 1: What is Life

Life is so unpredictable. You don't know what to expect. You don't know what's about to happen to you. Life is important to me because I'm in it. It became important to me when I turned into a teenager. I started looking at life in a different perspective because people in my life that I love will someday let go of the grass and because I experienced a loved one leave and I will be that pain again someday. As life goes on and on what is happening? Is life becoming better or worse. It feels like it's becoming worse because there are diseases killing people and there is no cure. There are drugs, homeless people, shootouts, and kidnapping and sooo many more.

Life is something we live and I'm wondering how do we live it. It's like a miracle sometimes it seems unreal but it's possible, but the hard part is it's not safe. The government can't even keep us safe. The president knew about Hurricane Katrina and did nothing about it and let a whole lot of people die, also he knew about the World Trade Center and what he did about that was go to a school and read a book to young children (all this was said but the only one who knows the truth is President Bush). Also this world is not safe because we don't know if a crazy person would start shooting anywhere or if a bomb would go off in the subway or anywhere else.

You can only have goals and try to achieve them. Have you ever wondered if this life is like a fairy tale, like people in a book and someone is reading us? How did water exist or how does things work the way it works? Animals do talk to communicate with other animals of the same kind. What do animals think and what do they see. Life has its ups and downs and is a mystery. Why is a chair called a chair or a door called a door? What if a chair was called a communication? It wouldn't sound right but I'm also wondering who named these names that sound right.

How would life be if we never die? Why do people do what they do? What influenced them? How do people exist? Where does money come from? If money is made from paper, can I go to the store and buy something with it? Why not? Money is made from paper and paper is made from wood. If paper is made from wood what can I buy with wood and how much is it worth? Life seems and feels like a fairy tale. In a fairy tale anything could happen, and anything could happen in life so is it similar to a fairy tale or what? There are sooo many questions to ask about life and so many of those questions will never be answer because who knows the truth? People find out things but some of those things are not true. ARE WE REAL?
