When we forced the person speaking to prove it, it was easy for that person to find what they were looking for. I + changed our discussion because it made us more focused and proved what our ideas were. Our discussion led us to ideas we didn't think of until we looked back into the text. Our conversation went very well because we stayed on topic and had lots of questions and lots of answers.

Our discussion was going back to the text. It was better because people thought that it was more productive. We asked more questions and it led to Sultan's baby being

- Hows the book going
- Whats difficult so far
- how did the discussion go today
- One skill you did well, work on

The books going okay and what's difficult is nothing now. The discussion went well because A lot of people had questions and Answers to it. The skill I did well was follow up questions. I think I dont need to ~~work on any skills~~ work on any skills
